

Pope John XXIII High School On the Move 2013

G etting started

Pope John XXIII High School is On the Move - in the halls, through our lives and around the world. The students, faculty and staff at Pope John are constantly in motion, whether it is to class, sports practice, club meetings or rehearsal. As the seniors move on from high school, the underclassmen ascend a grade and new students arrive next year, we will continue to progress as a school community.

In the past year, Pope John has shifted in a new direction. There is new leadership, various clubs and a diverse mixture of students from all over the world. As our community proceeds forward and engages with people from the different cultures present at our school, students become more globally aware and accepting of these cultures.

This year's theme of On the Move is reflective of our Pope John community. The book is divided into the seasons of Fall, Winter and Spring. These seasons are represented through the rich color palette of deep reds, blues and greens used throughout the book. This yearbook emphasizes our on-the-go lifestyle through the use of various elements. A major element in the book are the circles and lines, which are meant to represent transportation lines such as the bus or train. This year's book aims to represent all students of Pope John - underclassmen and seniors alike.

Making the Grade

Along with athletics and extracurricular activities, academics are an essential part of a student's high school career. Here at Pope John, we have a variety of courses to study as well as different levels to study them at. Our faculty works hard to ensure that students are being educated and prepared for their futures.

Starting fresh is never easy. This season, Mr. Fineran had to build a team with four returning varsity players, the rest of the lineup being players brought up from the junior varsity team the previous year. Though all these girls hadn't played together as one team before, they still managed to come together on the court. With intensity and determination, the team showed that they had potential. This was not an easy season, but learning from this year's mistakes, next year's season shows promise. The junior varsity team also showed they're preparing for what lies ahead in years to come, showing their cooperation and power.

Season Perks

What was your favorite part of the season?

"Winning three games in a row." - Arianna Biscoe

"When the varsity team helped us out." - Lauren Fraser

"My favorite part of the season was playing Queen of the Court at the end of practices." - Eleny Rossi

Toughing it out

This was not an easy year for the girls' soccer team, bumps in the road hurt their chances of a great drive through the season. Loss of players who graduated had an effect on them, but they still fought hard with a small team. What really hurt the team was injuries. Through brutal games and tiring practices, every girl had acquired huge bruises and long cuts. Some had more serious injuries that would only take time to heal, and that took them off the field.

Though the season was not perfect, these Tigers never let it get to them. Every game they learned a bit more and tried a little harder. Their struggle brought them together, and made them closer than ever. The juniors and senior on the team became like big sisters to the younger players, helping them with technique and game rules. Maggie McCormack, a captain, said, "My favorite part of the season was watching the team grow and knowing that my leadership took part in making the team as successful as it was. Even though we didn't have the best season, there wasn't a team that loved each other as much as we did."

"One of my favorite parts about this season was bonding." - Katherine Lombardi

"My favorite part was coming into a new team that was accepting and supportive. I felt welcomed and connected to my teammates." - Rachel Amaral

"We pulled through and ended the season strong." - Sarah Chen

"I liked being there to help my team in any way." - Fran Caruso

To start off the 2012 football season, our Pope John Tigers played in 4 non-league games, facing teams in higher divisions than our own. Familiar Faces

"Ability may be what takes you to the top, but it is character that keeps you there." I love and will miss all of my teammates!"

- Olivia LeDonne, Senior

"I learned life is kind of like a football game, There is ups, downs, and tons of different emotions. The way you react to those ups and downs and the way you respond to those emotions defines you as not only a football player, but as a person."

- Stephen Hopkins Senior

The Tigers quarter back, Michael Sullivan (Jr) contributed greatly to the team's success this season. After the final game, Sullivan was chosen for the Catholic Central All Star team, along with 7 other teammates.

Throughout this years season, Joe D'Onofrio (Jr) showed his capability of taking a leadership role and helped his team tremendously. For his achievements, D'Onofrio was named the Catholic Central Small's offensive plauer of the year.

Making a team

Academic Clubs are just one of the many great opportunities that Pope John XXIII High School has for its students. National Honors Society (N.H.S.), Happily Never After Book Club, and the Math Team are three academic clubs that are greatly enjoyed by many students. N.H.S. allows students to enrich their lives through community service opportunities such as the tutoring program. Happily Never After Book Club is a time for students to talk about books that they enjoy and to share their passion for reading with their classmates. The Math Team gives students a chance to work together to solve challenging math problems against other teams from various schools. Morgan Ronan, a junior, participates in all three of these clubs. She says: "Being a part of these academic clubs as well as other activities enriches my life and makes me into a better, more well-rounded person."

the Magic of Theatre

"Theatre to me is magic. Everyone involved has a hand in breathing life into plain pieces of paper. The theatre is an actor's best medium because the actor in the end will be responsible for making each and every single performance special. If you choose to major in theatre, you have to be passionate in storytelling of all forms... As an actor, you will eventually change from trying to make a piece of art with your cast to becoming a piece of art with your cast. It takes a lot of dedication, but you will gain so much from it. This is why I've decided to major in it," said Jessica Nguyen, right.

In the first time in Pope John XXIII history the competition piece "A Piece of My Heart" made it past the preliminary round of the METG Drama Festival, and continued on to the semi-finals. The play personified the lives of 5 nurses, one soldier, and one member of an all girl band and their account of the tragic Vietnam War. Three students received awards for their performances including Jessica Nguyen, Christina McGonagle, and Kayla DesRuisseaux.

Morgan Ronan, Tori Bordonaro, and Kayla DesRuisseaux.

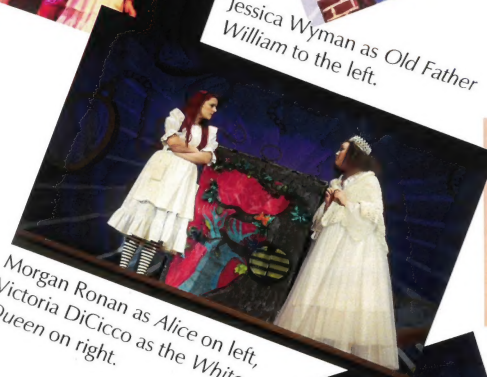

Alice in Wonderland

The first play of the year was a whimsical adventure in to Wonderland. An all star cast that was comprised of Pope John's best actors and actresses delightfully gave this classic play new life. Innovative ideas such as zip lines, strobe lights, and falling playing cards all made this play unique and special.

Express Yourself!

Many clubs at Pope John XXIII allow students to creatively express themselves through writing, design, and exploration. These types of clubs include newspaper, yearbook, speech and debate, and the adventure club. Our newspaper, "The Mercury", gives students the opportunity to actively write about the current events in the world and in our school. Yearbook is a way to creatively design and put together a years worth of events. This helps students get more involved in their school community through interviews, and photography. Speech and Debate tournaments run all day Saturday so they get to know one another really well and become a family. The Adventure Club challenges students to overcome fears and work together as a group to motivate each other until the end.

Throughout the year, academics at Pope John occurs not only in the classroom but often on various educational field trips. Every year, Mr. Burke takes his fine arts class to the Museum of Fine Arts where they get to see everything they learned throughout the year. They even got to make their own artwork which they got to take home as a souvenir. In the classroom, students work hard to improve their grades and get the best out of their learning experience.

Supporting the Tigers

Everyone knows that any sporting event is incomplete without an energetic crowd there for support. It's no doubt that seeing an outgoing crowd gets the team ready for the big game. There is no better feeling than knowing your friends are there to support you whether you win or lose. The fans are so important to our school and we would surely be nothing without them.

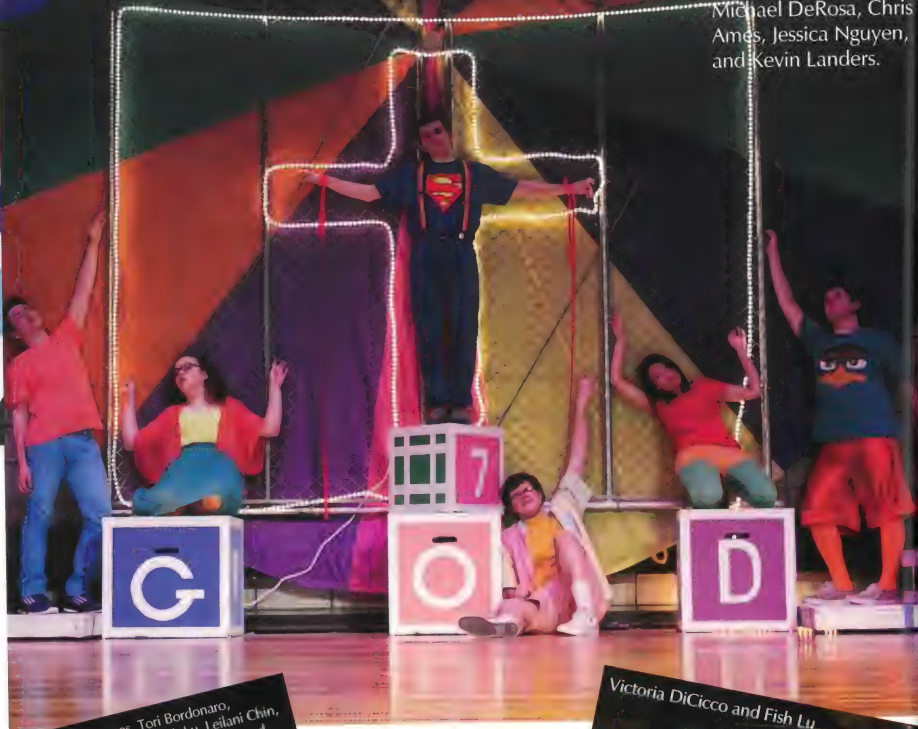

Even though every tiger is there to support our teams, some people are superfans! Two of Pope John's greatest supporters are Junior Courtney Braz and Senior Shanika Edouard (above). They go all out when it's time to support their fellow tigers with face paint, t-shirts and so much more. A home game wouldn't be the same without their cheering.

The Modern Day Gospels

Godspell is a musical based off many different parables from the Bible. The show highlights many of Jesus' teachings. The first act is full of energy and vigor, while the second act introduces a more serious part of the musical. The musical includes the life of modern Jesus, ending with his crucifixion and resurrection. Members of the cast said that the production was difficult at first, but through long practices and hours of choreography and vocals, the play really fell into place. With the help of the S.O.S. team (Simon, Oates, Solero), the students put on a fantastic performance that they were proud of. This musical, filled with color, music, and dance, was a marvel.

Moving Up

The beginning of the 2012-2013 school year had a lot of uncertainty between the new principal and staff additions. Students and parents alike were unsure of what the new year would bring. Through the remaining months, the school settled into a year of academic, athletic, and artistic prosperity. There were some rough patches, but this small community at Pope John remained a family.

With such an active and diverse school, the student body section also incorporates events and talents otherwise not covered in the yearbook. Included in the following pages is special coverage on students who work, siblings, musical and artistic talents, Chinese New Year, and other features.

- 1 Fran Caruso and Olivia Ledonne
- 2 Josh Manning and Jerome Andaya

A Change of Leadership

Dr. Thomas Ryan joins Pope John as the new Head of School for the 2012-2013 year.

In a change of policy, Pope John hired a new Head of School over the summer to replace the retiring President. The Board of Trustees selected Dr. Thomas Ryan, who began in September.

Dr. Ryan was born in Minnesota. In 1970, he chose to move to Boston and became a guidance counselor at Brookline High School. Our new Head of School served as principal at Nantucket High School, Stoneham High School and Notre Dame High School in Lawrence over the last 30 years.

As a new Head of School, Dr. Ryan has set goals of getting to know new students, faculty and the community of PJ. He is also set with the task of integrating the young international program with a diverse local population.

Working Hard In the community to bring home extra dough.

Lauren Fraser and Charu Bova have been working at Bova's bakery in Boston for 2 years. They work every Saturday and Sunday from 12pm-8pm.

Rachelle Edmond works at Dunkin' Donuts in Lexington, MA every Saturday and Sunday from 7am to 12pm.

Abigail Cain has been working at DiAmici's Bakery on Melrose's Main Street since October. She works Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays ranging from 3 until closing time.

Julia Bosco works with the younger girls at the same gymnastics studio she attends. She helps out at meets and at their gymnastics practices.

Diverse Experience

International students engage the school in a play that explains the meaning of Chinese New Year. 2013, the year of the rat was celebrated after a series of snow days on February 13.

The animals are arguing that every year should be named of their own. The dog, Jaeyoon Jung, is giving us his reason of why this year should be named after him.

Finally, the rat, which is acted by Leon Ma wins the competition because he is so smart and the year is named after him.

There is a group of seniors taking the picture in their Freshmen year Theology class.

In past three years, every Senior student studied as a family in the school, they all love each other. As a sweet memory, about 40 students went to New York on Friday and Saturday on December together. (Far Left) They went shopping and saw two Broadway plays, they had a wonderful time together and that trip can always remind them of the time they spent together.

Jessica Palma-Perez and Bridgitta Vargas posing in class freshmen year.

The Senior class students are getting along well even though we had a lot of international students joined in the group in Sophomore and Junior year. That makes the Senior class more special because everybody learned from each other about different languages, customs, traditions and moral of different countries. All of us get more knowledge and more new friends, that makes the life in school more colorful.

In Memory & Dedication

Mr. Daniel Doherty, Sr.

The PJHS community lost one of its pillars on Thursday, April 25, 2013. Mr. Daniel Doherty Sr. was one of the truly historic figures at our school, having dedicated his boundless energy, time, talents, and compassion for 45 years. Our prayers and thoughts are with him and his family.

Mr. Daniel Doherty became involved with our school in 1969, when his eldest son, Dan, entered as a freshman. As he and younger siblings, Stephen and Patricia and, much later grandsons Brian and Patrick spent their high school years studying, playing sports, and making friends at Pope John, Mr. Doherty became actively involved in raising money and helping families find financial resources to attend the school.

Through the years, Mr. Doherty has served Pope John in a variety of ways. He was active in leading the original Fathers' Club. He helped bring Bingo games to Pope John in the early 1970s and helped run them for some 15 years, bringing much-needed revenue to the school. When the original Pope John Advisory Board was created in 1973, Mr. Doherty was a charter member. He also worked in the school's Finance Office.

The 2013 Yearbook has been dedicated in Mr. Doherty's honor for his commitment to the Pope John Community, it's successes and it's longevity. He has been a fundamental supporter of Pope John's mission for nearly five decades and will be sorely missed.
